Thanks, Tom.

I'm not clear whether Deryl is located in or near Springdale, but if he is, I might start the process myself on Wednesday afternoon.

I'm waiting for hotel advice in Tulsa, because I haven't heard from John Tucker relative to where he would like to meet us on Tuesday morning.

Tom, if you'd like to talk with Deryl Oxford, who recently retired from Cargill after 30 years in the turkey business, we can do so next Wednesday. My view is that the lawyers should interview Deryl Oxford, asking what questions you'd like answered. What do you think.

Del:

See Tim's response.

Do you think Ginn would have time to do this Wednesday after he gets his general sense of the watershed?

I think the best thing we can do on historical grower involvement is to have Dr. Ginn sit down with Deryl Oxford and talk through the history of the Springdale Complex. Do you want to do this next week or at a later time? Thanks. Tim

Tim and Tim:

Please note that we are sued for what our growers are doing and for what they have done. This means we will need the locations of all former growers too. We did that for a three year period in the Spavinaw watershed. Here, we probably are going to have to disclose as much history as we have.

Please give thought as to how to get that information compiled so we can share it with Dr. Ginn.

Call with any questions please.
